The editorial "We" of this paper underwent a further change this week when W. D. Mackay, formerly of the Calgary Alberta and the Toronto Star, joined the firm and the paper will in the future be published by Moses, Mackay and, Rekham. As we stated last week, the aim of the News will be to Boost Carlstadt and the entire community. A live, up-to-date paper of the quality we hope to hand out will be an invaluable asset to the Busy Burg and we ask for the support of the people of the district.

Since the new management took charge, a number of citizens of the appreciative kind have come in while substantial contributions and job work - and this we hope and expect to meet many more. Boost Carlstadt by Boosting the Booster.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY

Union Rally Next Sunday At Hankel's School House

There will be a union Sunday School rally held at Hankel's school house on next Sunday, August 11th. The Rainy Hill, Wicksdale, and Viking Sunday Schools will be combined. Everyone is requested to come early. Lunch will be at 12 o'clock sharp and the program starts at 1 o'clock. Everybody comb and bring a basket. All are cordially invited.

BURIAL OF MRS. BEATTIE

Interment Made A Medicine Hat, on Monday.

On Monday the interment of the late Mrs. George Beattie, who died suddenly here, took place at Hillside cemetery, Medicine Hat. The remains were encased in a handsome casket; silk lined, and the body had been prepared with care by Messrs. Yokom and Drummond. Many accompanied the remains to the cemetery where repose many of the sons and daughters of Scotland. Mr. Morrow of St. John's Presbyterian Church, officiated, and referred fittingly to her noble life, and sudden death.

The coffin was covered with wreaths, those sending same being: Dr. and Mrs. Holt, Medicine Hat; The Ladies of Christendom, the Church Guild, The Adams Club, Modern Woodmen of America, Mrs. Wooliven, Ernest Wooliven, Mrs. Wm. Rutherford, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Bell, and Mrs. Barron. A handsome wreath at the head was from father and son with their loving remembrance. The pall bearers were Dr. Holt, James Foughty, Charles England, E. C. Cole, Fred Howett, A. J. Drummond, and J. H. Stevens. Dr. McEwan was the unavoidable absent, though he called out to a very critical case. Many expressions of sympathy are heard on all sides, the lady's kindness of heart being widely known.

Card of Thanks.

I am deeply grateful to three friends, who in the hour of greatest need, came to my aid, for the great assistance rendered at the distressing event of her Wednesday. Taylor, who sent wreaths and flowers. I beg to take this opportunity of thanking them for their sympathy and support during this hour of great sorrow. — George Beattie.

BIG TRADE.

Saturday was a busy day in Carlstadt. Businessmen for miles around were in town purchasing their supplies, and the enterprising merchants that a big business. There were several big wagon loads of lumber taken out, and we saw a number of wagons piled high with furniture, flour, sugar and merchandise to say nothing of the farming implements and machinery that were purchased in large quantities.

Better evidence than this is needed to show how much the farmers appreciate the treatment given them by Carlstadt's business men, and the advantages of doing their trading here.

Auction Sale.

Under令 note, the following live stock machinery will be sold: 30x30 Separator No. 8222; 56 inch Ruth Feder, No. 2207; 60 inch Windsteker No. 3599; Danish Harley Weigher, No. 1612; 190 ft. 9 in. 5 pl. rubber belt; The sale takes place on Monday at 10 o'clock a.m., on lot No. 16, block 5, Village of Carlstadt.

TERMS: Cash.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS

BUSY BURG IS BOOMING

Much Work Being Done Around Carlstadt.

We failed to mention last week the fact that many of the business men, were much in evidence by Saturday afternoon. Among these were B. A. Barnes, the jeweler; Dr. S. F. McEwan; England & England real estate, the Carlstadt hotel, and H. R. Bean.

W. A. Johnson, has had an addition window put in his pool hall, thus adding to the lighting arrangements.

The Able lumber company property, sheds, fences, etc., is resplendent with fresh paint.

J. Leonard has also progressed having his bakery shop raised to the level of the sidewalk. There should soon be several additions and alterations to Carlstadt's first class establishments.

Wm. Busard, auctioneer, will hold a sale for the M. Bunting Co., in Carlstadt on Monday, August 12th. Mr. Bunting has a number of valuable articles the dates of which will be announced later in these news columns.

Esthern's circus has come — and gone. That's about all they did do.

And Such Crops As Those Will Keep It Booming.

At the Atlas Lumber Co. office we saw samples of grain raised on the homestead of C. Coffey, who lives about five miles west. They're fine ones! There were oats, flax, and two kinds of wheat, and while the wheat, in particular, is rather short the yield will be heavy. F. J. Huff the local manager of the lumber company, estimated that the wheat would easily make 20 bushels to an acre, the oats at least 60 bushels. Nor is the flax at all slow, either.

Prosperity will reign on the farm of George Hermans, north of Carlstadt. His wheat is reported to be over four feet tall, and the heads are 5 3-4 inches. The assured yield is 30 bushels to the acre. In fact, practically the entire district where Mr. Hermans is located shows splendid crop prospects. Verily, these are the golden days in Sunny Alberta!

The School board held a short meeting on Monday evening and considered several applications for the teaching staff. Nothing of a definite nature was transacted and the appointments will be finally dealt with at a later date. The school opens in two weeks.

JUDKINS OF PULLTIGHT

An Original Story

By Calvin Goss

Synopsis of Story—Joshua Judkins, a country greenhorn, makes good writing up the exposition. He is employed as a regular reporter on the staff of the Bugle. He meets Edith Hoskins and makes a visit back home. Joshua has many adventures but always comes out on top.

He had not allied himself to any with special interests. In presenting the political fight in favor of the Central, he had been obliged to take sides on a number of issues and his backers. As one of the Colonel's best men, the right had, however, a stage where an interview with Hoskins was very much desired by the city editor and he had chosen Joshua Judkins as the reporter best calculated to get this interview. Accordingly he gave Joshua the assignment, with particular directions as to just what was wanted. Though he had been with the bugle little more than a year Joshua had developed some rare traits in an interview. He was not swayed by prop or greatness nor was he easily turned from his purpose when once he began on a thing. Joshua called on the great financier at his elegant office suite on Fifth Avenue and went direct to the office of his visit. He handed the financier his card, which informed the Colonel that Joshua Judkins was with the Bugle, and as he did so Joshua said: "Colonel Hoskins, I gradient young scamp, don't you dare to come to interview me. Get out of my office. You are not in Cyril Young's class. You are an ignorant country greenhorn." "Very true. I am not in Cyril Young's class. He is a drunkard and worse. I am at least clean. I will leave your office, Mr. Hoskins, but let me say that you have made a big mistake in treating me as you have." "I will have to speak to you again, even if I have to spend half my fortune. We will show that the Bugle it cannot stand." "I am not in Cyril Young's class, but I have to spend half my fortune." "Very true. I am not in Cyril Young's class. He is a drunkard and worse. I am at least clean. I will leave your office, Mr. Hoskins, but let me say that you have made a big mistake in treating me as you have."

"Darin you, Cyril Young is going to win, even if I have to spend half my fortune. We will show that the Bugle it cannot stand." "I am not in Cyril Young's class, but I have to spend half my fortune." "Very true. I am not in Cyril Young's class. He is a drunkard and worse. I am at least clean. I will leave your office, Mr. Hoskins, but let me say that you have made a big mistake in treating me as you have."

Colonel Hoskins realized at once that he had made a mistake and unmasked his fortifications. His anger had carried him to a far Joshua had gained his point. "He had all the material he wanted for the article which came out in bold head-lines that afternoon giving the history of Cyril Young's candidacy and the part that Colonel Hoskins had played in promoting it, quoting his last speech and enlarging on the fact to show just what the promotion of my candidate by Colonel Hoskins meant. It was not a vindictive or bitter article but a sane and convincing one, and it was generally conceded by the opponents of Cyril Young that it would do much to with the rest of 'em, and he did.

"Gauzy" was astonished at the case with which Joshua, who had come to the Bugle so awkward and ungainly now falling into the pages of politics society like one to the manner born; and there were others who were also astonished. Among these was Edith Hoskins, who met Joshua in a smiling and friendly way that convinced Joshua that if she had read the attack in the Bugle on Colonel Hoskins a few weeks before, she was not aware that he was its author.

Cyril Young was there and Joshua could not but notice the contrast which existed between his appearance at the "cake walk" at "Hog John's," a few months before. To night he was the young man of fashion. His mind was at ease, for he really believed that a month hence he would be elected to Congress. And, then, had not Edith Hoskins accepted his invitation to the reception? No wonder if he left satisfied with himself and could utterly ignore the presence of an inconsequential rival like Joshua.

"While he was at his best, and Edith happened to be seated near Joshua among some of the tall palms that decorated the reception room, said he:

"Miss Hoskins, this is a contrast to the scene you and I looked upon down among the Indiana Knobs but as far as I am concerned I do not consider it an improvement. I do not know how you feel about it, but I love nature in its wild state best." "I believe you know, Mr. Judkins, how I feel about society life and its artificialities. I agree with you that there is no music so sweet as the music of the birds in their native haunts, so I seem more beautiful than such as I looked upon under the morning and evening skies of Southern Indiana. You must love your home and often wish you were there, away from the press, the exhibition, the bitter and cruel rivalry of the city."

"I remember one April morning not so very long ago when I was hunting deer."

The music had ceased, the conversation was cut short and the two were soon separated.

But the simple Joshua had a new sensation in his heart and a smiling picture there embraced that would do.

Joshua and Gauzy did not go directly home after the reception but walked for an hour in the park, talking of many things. While seated upon the bench which Joshua had come to call his "sanctum," he had done some of his best writing there, the two were startled by the appearance on the gravelled path a few feet away of a negro, apparently looking for somebody. Joshua recognized him at once as the thing whom he had reason to believe was in Cyril Young's employ, and whose object it was to do him bodily harm. His first resolve was to meet the thug and have it out with him, but knowing that the negro would be armed while he himself was without a weapon, he kept his seat and the negro, seeing there were two "gaudy" and Joshua parted at the door of Joshua's lodging that night in the "worn-out" hour of the morning, "Gauzy" said: "For one, I will be glad when the election is over and Cyril Young is beaten, for it is now my opinion that he will not be elected to Congress."

"Not if I can bring about his defeat," said Joshua.

It was two weeks until the election, and the campaign was getting hotter every day. Young had gone out into the byways and down into the cities and where he went he was received with the out-and-show of cordiality which tickled his vanity and gave him false hopes of his success. He was among the kind, the vile and depraved, in spite of the fact that he assumed to belong to the top-notches of society.

CANADIAN DEMAND FOR BINDER TWINE

United States Gets Advantage of Canada's Big Markets—Unequal Competition has Home Home Industry

Last year there were over 321,000 bushels of grain tied up in Canada. Canadian twine for grain binding was used for the harvesting of more than 287 million bushels of grain. This was still greater, and as Canada's grain area of arable land is still increasing, the demand for grain more extensive with the passing years, one can only guess at the amount of grain to be harvested this year. Yet, with this most notable future stretching out before us, the Canadian twine industry is relatively little of the product is made in Canada. Our market is really supplied by the United States.

Such a condition exists chiefly because of an unequal competition in the two countries between Canada and the United States. The advantages are with the latter country, and the Canadian grain and cereal industries have not absolutely free access to the Canadian market. The Canadian government has the valuable supplies of raw materials in the Pacific Islands.

Such a condition exists because of the twine business of Canada was carried on by Canadian manufacturers, who had a large share of this business in the hands of the so-called "Harvester Trust," a company which controlled 90 per cent of the twine business in Canada, but made little if any profit on the sales.

Up to April, 1897, the rate of duty payable on grain twine imported from the United States was 15 per cent. At that time the Canadian government removed this duty and the rate was 10 per cent, but after the removal of the duty, the Canadian government removed altogether, and ever since since has remained in the same.

The clearest and most forceful evidence of the effect of this particular reduction in the tariff is contained in the following statement of imports of grain twine from the United States since 1895:

1895—3,013,250 lbs. $ 15,429
1896—10,592,211 lbs. 81,844
1897—20,000,000 lbs. 200,000

The marked increase in the imports of grain twine after the removal of the duty is clearly shown, and since the last year before our market was opened to the United States, for the closing down of many large mills in Canada, and is one big reason why Canadian businesses men do not import grain twine to the industry at the present time.

The marked increase in the imports of grain twine after the removal of the duty is clearly shown, and since the last year before our market was opened to the United States, for the closing down of many large mills in Canada, and is one big reason why Canadian businesses men do not import grain twine to the industry at the present time.

In the following statement of imports of grain twine from the United States since 1895:

1895—3,013,250 lbs. $ 15,429

WESTERN CANADA'S DAY

This has been referred to as Canada's century. In Western Canada we use no such general term. This is Western Canada's century, decade, year, month, week and day. With the passing of each twenty-four hour period, new business blocks and homes are under construction, new lines of railways have pushed on a little further, and each day is brighter than the one preceding.

There is no safer or surer investment today than lands or town lots in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. If you wish your dollars to work every Western Canadian Day call on or address

SOMETHING DOING
AROUND CARLSTADT

The rooms above the News office are being repaired.

Jack Diving has purchased Jack Boyd's driving house.

Monday afternoon W. R. Hoyle was a passenger to Brooks.

Mrs. R. S. Clark returned Friday from an extended visit in Lethbridge.

Miss L. S. Perry has returned to her home in Glenbow after a visit into with friends.

J. M. Johnston of Calgary spent Monday and Tuesday in town in the interests of the Reeves Co.

Grey Askew was at Mr. Campbell's in the Tide Lake district, last week, to set up binders.

J. W. Pound was in town from his home about fifty miles north, making the trip in his auto.

Mr. W. M. Cotter was called on Tuesday last to Regina to attend the funeral of his Mother, whose death occurred suddenly.

L. S. Ayers and son were in from 35 miles north Tuesday to take out a load of provisions and machinery. They report crops in fine condition in that territory.

Francis Quigley whose arm was broken by a cow kick some two weeks ago is very much improved. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Quigley, living 9 miles north.

On Monday O. J. Wood and family moved into their beautiful new cottage on Bowell street. Their new residence is a fine one, and indeed a credit to the busy burg.

Next week the News will publish a business directory of Carlstadt. All our present advertisers will of course be mentioned in this list. Any others who desire their names in this department should communicate for space at once.

Miss Isobel McMillen, who for the past two weeks has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Barnes, left Tuesday. From here she went to Calgary, where she will visit another sister, and then continue on to her home in Red Deer.

Carlstadt's business men are replenishing their office supplies of stationery, etc. from the job department of the News. We assure you of satisfaction and our work.

We have received orders the past few days from Herringshaw grocery, Scollard & Hibby, B. A. Barnes, the Cole livery stables, Pleasant View Farms, Guy Hamilton, Proprietor, Dr. R. H. Mason, and A. J. Drummond.

A daughter was born Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Brigham, but the little infant was not long for this world. Monday it passed away to the land fairer than this. In the same hour, the News received the many friends in words of condolence. Burial was made at the country home, on Tuesday.

Around Town

Mr. Clysdale is on the sick list. Are you ready to get a loan or two and call and see us. Engle & Engle.

Miss Minnie Torsom, of the Palmer Ice Cream parlor, is spending a few days in the country at the residence of Fred Rowatt.

It is planned to be given in McLean's hall on Monday night, promise to be a popular event. Good music has been secured.

The handsome new block erected by the Union Bank is practically completed, and only awaits the installation of the fittings, which are on their way from the East.

Mothers have you given your order for the Willow Craft waists for your children? So sewing on tassels. Good strong material for girls and small boys. Also orders taken for the Spirral Crest Waists. The stays won't break, they are made of Piano steel wire, covered with nickel, copper and zinc. Therefore you won't run with a year of wear. Orders taken by Gertrude Askew, Carlstadt.

CHURCH NOTES

The Anglican Church service will be held on Sunday August 11th in the Methodist Church at 7:30 p. m. All are cordially welcome. J. H. Baldwin.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered in Carlstadt Methodist church last Sunday morning. A goodly number were in attendance. The services of the church should be now a interesting, peaceful and quiet one.

One who is spending time away from home in the fast and to find in his new home the cheer of former days, is invited to join with us at the hour of worship. Service next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The discourse will be upon "Life's Tales". A most cordial welcome will be given to all. F. E. Clysdale.

Elmer England has returned to Carlstadt after a three month's trip to the coast.

The principal point he visited was Seattle, Washington, where he was a guest at the parental home—the first time in fifteen years. Vancouver and Victoria were also included in his trip.

HOSKIN

The homesteaders are putting up hay these days.

The church service Sunday evening was largely attended, and the sermon was much enjoyed by those present. Mr. Johnson will preach again two weeks from Sunday night, on August the eighteenth. Everyone is invited to attend.

Mrs. Vi Lowe, of Medicine Hat, spent Monday with her sister, Mrs. A. E. McLeish.

A few from here took in the show in Carlstadt last Tuesday. They report a good time.

The people of Heskin are feeling rather sore over the loss of their postoffice. Considering the cause they cannot be blamed.

H. E. Mills spent Sunday afternoon the guest of John Nielsen.

The Misses Rees and Elsie McClester are spending their holidays at their home here.

Peter Elliott spent Sunday afternoon the guest of friends at Hoskin.
